

Title IV-C Career Guidance Program

The federally funded Title IV-C program has been in operation in our county for almost a year. Title IV-C is the "Career Guidance" program for students in grades 7 through 12. As a part of this program administrators, teachers, and counselors at Appomattox Middle School and Appomattox County High School have worked diligently to accomplish the stated objectives.

Students have been made aware of career choices through units taught in classrooms at various grade levels and through individual and group counseling sessions with the guidance counselors. Students at the 7 grade level have had the opportunity to develop long range plans through choice of classes for the next 5 years. The student has had the opportunity to see the importance of planning a career early and reevaluating it each year through career conferences with their counselors.

We encourage parents to contact the principals or guidance counselors to learn more about the Title IV-C program. To aid parents and interested persons in learning more about this unique program, we have developed a brochure for distribution to parents. These pamphlets will be brought home by students during this week. We ask that all parents read these and keep in mind that a Title IV-C evaluating team will be in the county next week to evaluate the entire IV-C program. This team will want to check with various members of the community to see if they have any understanding of the program and to register their comments.

The Title IV-C program has already provided a new counseling suite, a second counselor, and a full time secretary at the Appomattox Middle School as well as a new counselor at Appomattox County High School. We hope these additions and improvements can help us better serve the citizens of Appomattox County and the future generation to come.

Westvaco To Sponsor Wildflower/Woodland Tours

Westvaco Corporation is sponsoring three Wildflower/Woodlands tours for area Garden Club members on April 25, 26 and 27. On each of these dates, garden clubbers and Westvaco foresters will be taking to the woods to observe spring wildflowers in their native habitat. The day-long tours will be held on Westvaco's Irvine Tract in Bedford County.

Along with the fragile, short-lived wildflowers, tour participants will observe forest management practices on this working forest. Wildlife, recreation, and aesthetics on managed forestlands will also be discussed.

Tour participants will see a variety of spring wildflowers in bloom, such as bluebells, dwarf crested iris, Solomon's seal, and foam-flower. We will investigate several different and interesting habitats on a working forest. Walks will be led by Karen Knapp, Westvaco forester and wildflower enthusiast; and Mrs. Minerva Kepler, amateur botanist and an expert at transplanting wildflowers (she has 150 varieties in her own back yard!). Westvaco foresters will also be on hand to point out and answer questions about trees, wildlife, and Westvaco's stewardship of their forestland.

Workshop Held at AES

In a recent workshop held at Appomattox Elementary School, Mrs. Pat Bibee from the State Department of Education, assisted county paraprofessionals in developing simple drawing and puppet-making techniques for classroom use. Among the techniques demonstrated was how to use old salvaged materials from home to make hand puppets. As a follow-up to this particular activity, Ms. Frances Watson taught students in Mrs. Hamlett's first grade at the Appomattox Primary School how to use old newspapers, linens, and their own imaginations to make simple hand puppets. The children thoroughly enjoyed the lesson and were delighted with their creations.
